Oil On Canvas Of A Salmon, John B. Russel.

A beautifully detailed 19th century angling oil on canvas painting of a Salmon and trout. The painting has been relined on canvas and is framed in a nicely painted period wooden frame. Written on the back of the frame "Tweed (Rutherford Beat) John Russel". On the canvas stretcher is a number which appears to read '5505', see images. The sporting oil painting is a study of a salmon and trout on the river bank with a large hip flask, landscape setting in the background. The fish are vibrantly represented with intricate detail and life like quality, an outstanding oil painting, unsigned but attributed to John Bucknell Russel who specialised in still life of freshwater fish, particularly salmon and trout.
