Description

Portrait of a Lady with a Fishing Rod.

This evocative vintage photographic print, based on an original oil on canvas, captures a woman Angler standing confidently outdoors with a fishing rod in hand. The rod has a reel attached to it; the female is also holding a landing net with a canvas fishing bag slung over her left shoulder. Her relaxed yet assured posture reflects the early 20th Century shift toward women's participation in outdoor sports, blending elegance with practicality. Rendered in warm sepia tones, the composition highlights both the figure and her equipment, while the ornate gilt frame enhances the period character, making it a striking decorative piece.

Frame size:- 52 cm high by 47 cm wide.

Could this be an early picture of the late Queen Mother, it was known she was a very keen fly fisher?
