Description

Vintage Brass Club Fender.

A wonderful club fender with an open front, brass uprights and a shaped brass base. The upholstered seat is 20 cm wide with the measurements inside the seat being 1m 5 cm. The front opening is 45 cm wide.

The idea with the open front of the fender is to retain access to the fire and to allow more heat to escape into the room. With a club fender you also add an extra dimension to a fireplace by providing more seating. Fenders were all the rage in the late eighteenth and early nineteenth centuries and were found in Gentleman's Clubs, libraries and billiard rooms of country houses.
