Description

Metamorphic Artists Studio Table Easel.

A very versatile late Victorian early Edwardian artists easel come table. The whole piece of equipment is versatile and adjustable, it is made of oak with a bleached finish. The item can be used as a normal table for working, eating or reading or even as a nice unusual hall table. The top can be raised or lowered, even angled. There is a drawer to one end that pulls out and can be used as an extra surface, this has a hinged lid that opens and can be used to place your brushes, paints etc. on it. There is a removable stop to place on the table top to stop items from sliding off when angled. The easel has adjustable height and the top will rotate to take landscape as well as portrait pictures. Can be used to paint from or display from, also could even be used as a reading table, lectern, small crafting table or even in a restaurant for booking in customers. A great piece of furniture with multiple uses, students would find it very useful in their bedsits.

Size shown is when when set up as a table.
