Description

Unusually Long Faced Blade Putter, Frank

An early, slightly offset, wry neck blade putter with an unusually narrow and long club head. The back of the club head is rounded with very indistinct markings, 'Frank, Hand Forged' possibly with three initials in Old English font. The blade putter measures a full 12 cm straight across the center of the face, from toe to heel. Possibly manufactured by Frank Johnson Ltd. London.

The measurements shown are the length of the whole club, the width and depth of the club face.
