Description

Antique Set Of Mounted Red Deer Antlers.

A pair of 8 point red deer antlers with carved wooden skull cap, mounted onto a round back board. These stag antlers are an excellent wall display and are mounted onto a 22 cm diameter turned ebonized wooden back board. Both antlers are shed antlers and have then been mounted on to the naturalistic wooden skull cap. There are two taxidermist stamps the the rear of the board but are difficult to read.

The Red Deer (Cervus elaphus), or Red Stag, is one of the largest deer species that inhabits most of Europe, the Caucasus Mountains region, Asia Minor, Iran, parts of western Asia, and central Asia. It also inhabits the Atlas Mountains region between Morocco and Tunisia in north-western Africa. The red deer is the largest non-domesticated mammal still existing in the Netherlands, United Kingdom and Ireland. The Barbary stag (which resembles the western European red deer) is the only member of the deer family represented in Africa. Only the stags have antlers, which are made of bone and grow at a rate of 2 ½ cm (1inch) a day. The antlers start growing in the spring and are shed each year, usually at the end of winter.
