Description

Vintage Cricket Bat Signed by 1939 West Indies v England Cricket Teams.

A good Tyldesley & Holbrook cricket bat signed by the 1939 West Indies v England Cricket Teams. The rear of the bat is signed by both teams to the spine in ink with the innings of the match played at Old Trafford. The signatures are clear and include such players as Hammond, Paynter, Wood, Compton, Wright, Goddard, Fagg, Copson, Hutton, Grant, Cameron, Clarke, Williams, Sealy, Stollmeyer and more. The embossed writing on the front of the bat reads: Tyldesley & Holbrook - Manchester, Test Match Tyldesley with three stars.

A good looking bat with some great cricket autographs, bat with rubber grip.

The West Indies cricket team toured England in the 1939 season to play a three-match Test series against England. England won the series 1-0 with two matches drawn. A total of 25 first-class matches were played and the West Indian side won eight of them and lost six, with the others drawn. The tour was abandoned a few days after the final test match because of the worsening international situation with World War II imminent. The last six matches from 26 August to 12 September were cancelled.
