Description

Hickory Shafted Golf Club, Rivers-Zambra Approach Putter.

A good original example of 'The Scuffler' by the Stadium Golf Co. This is an unusual chipper with a unique head shape having a low profile blade with 25° lofted face, with the face, crown, back and sole all being flat. The face with square dot punched markings. The club head stamped with the 'anchor' mark of the Stadium Golf Co., London. Stadium did not forge their own club heads, but instead had them made by the well known cleek makers, the Gourlays.

The Gourlay family came from Carnoustie and both father and son were named James. One of their cleek marks was also an 'anchor' but of a slightly different design to that of the Stadium Co. that came into use circa 1925. The Gourlays also forged heads for other makers, most notably Robert Simpson.

Stamped on the club head are 'Rivers-Zambra Approach Putter, RegD No.740870, 'Anchor' cleek mark, Guaranteed Hand Forged'. The hickory shaft has a polished leather grip.
design registered in 1928

The measurements shown are the length of the shaft with hosel and the width and depth of the face.
